Remarks.

In looking back over the past year, we feel that there has been good work done, both by teachers and scholars.

It is from the teachers that the scholars derive their greatest benefit; their interest, promptness and punctuality are awakened by the example they find in their teachers.

More interest and sympathy should be shown by the parents toward the teachers instead of a quiet indifference or an unwise interference.

Surely the teachers prefer harmony, and would exert themselves to maintain the same; why should not the parents do as much?

A little more thoroughness in preparing the school registers, would be highly appreciated by the committee; of course incomplete registers, render inaccurate statistics.
